Reading Every Day.

by Vaishali Dawar, Librarian

HAPPY  READING

January, 2017
Issue No.24

Every management guru or personality development coach insists to spend time for focused reading every day. Reading on the subject of interest, personal development, getting more knowledge and ideas on the work we do, must be involved in everyday reading.

A study of 1,200 wealthy people found that they all have reading as a pastime in common. They are also selective about what they read, opting to be educated over being entertained. They read for self-improvement, education and success. They believe that books are a gateway to learning and knowledge. They obsess over biographies and autobiographies of other successful people for guidance and inspiration. Reading is a key part of their success.

When Warren Buffett was once asked about the key to success, he pointed to a stack of nearby books and said, "Read 500 pages like this every day. That's how knowledge works. It builds up like compound interest." He still devotes 80% of each day to reading. Bill Gates reads about 50 books per year.

Mark Cuban reads more than 3 hours every day.

Mark Zuckerberg resolved to read a book every two weeks throughout 2015.

If you want to be successful, you must allot sometime of your each day for focused reading besides study and leisure reading.

10 must read books for 2017:

THOUGHT OF WISDOM

THE TWO BROTHERS

Once upon a time, two brothers who lived on adjoining farms fell into conflict. It was the first serious rift in 40 years of farming side by side, sharing machinery, and trading labour and goods as needed without a hitch. Then the long collaboration fell apart. It began with a small misunderstanding and it grew into a major difference, and finally it exploded into an exchange of bitter words followed by weeks of silence. One morning there was a knock on John's door. He opened it to find a man with a carpenter's toolbox. "I'm looking for a few days work," he said. "Perhaps you would have a few small jobs here and there. Could I help you?" "Yes," said the older brother. "I do have a job for you. Look across the creek at that farm. That's my neighbor. In fact, it's my younger brother. Last week there was a meadow between us and he took his bulldozer to the river levee and now there is a creek between us. Well, he may have done this to spite me, but I'll go him one better. See that pile of lumber curing by the barn? I want you to build me a fence - an 8-foot fence - so I won't need to see his place anymore. Cool him down anyhow."

The carpenter said, "I think I understand the situation. Show me the nails and the post hole digger and I'll be able to do a job that pleases you." The older brother had to go to town for supplies, so he helped the carpenter get the materials ready and then he was off for the day. The carpenter worked hard all that day measuring, sawing, and nailing. About sunset when the farmer returned, the carpenter had just finished his job. The farmer's eyes opened wide, his jaw dropped. There was no fence there at all. It was a bridge - a bridge stretching from one side of the creek to the other! A fine piece of work - handrails and all - and the neighbour, his younger brother, was coming across, his hand outstretched. "You are quite a fellow to build this bridge after all I've said and done." The two brothers stood at each end of the bridge, and then they met in the middle, taking each other's hand.

They turned to see the carpenter hoist his toolbox on his shoulder. "No, wait! Stay a few days. I've a lot of other projects for you," said the older brother. "I'd love to stay on," the carpenter said, but I have many more bridges to build." Everyday we have the choice of building fences or bridges. One leads to isolation and the other to openness.

INTRODUCTION TO SPECIAL LIBRARY

Chhatrapati Shivaji Maharaj

Vastu Sangrahalaya

formerly Prince of Wales Museum of western india

Established on: January 10, 1922

Architectural style: Indo-Saracenic Revival architecture

Director: Sabyasachi Mukherji
